What to Expect

Your West Point nomination interview will typically be conducted by a panel of three people. The panel will likely include a West Point graduate, a military officer, and a civilian.

The interview will last for about 30 minutes. During that time, the panel will ask you questions about your academic achievements, your extracurricular activities, your leadership experience, and your reasons for wanting to attend West Point.

It's important to be prepared for all types of questions. The panel may ask you about your strengths and weaknesses, your goals and aspirations, and your thoughts on current events.

How to Answer Common Questions

Here are some tips for answering common West Point nomination interview questions:

- Be honest and authentic. The panel wants to get to know the real you. So, don't try to be someone you're not.
- Be specific and detailed. When answering questions, provide specific examples of your experiences and accomplishments.
- Be enthusiastic. Show the panel that you're passionate about West Point and that you're excited about the opportunity to attend.
- Be prepared to talk about your leadership experience. West Point is looking for leaders. So, be sure to highlight your experience in leadership roles.
- Be prepared to talk about your reasons for wanting to attend West Point. The panel wants to know why you want to attend West Point and what you hope to gain from the experience.

What to Wear

You should dress professionally for your West Point nomination interview. This means wearing a suit or dress pants and a button-down shirt. You should also make sure your shoes are clean and polished.

What to Bring

You should bring a few things with you to your West Point nomination interview. These include:

- Your resume
- Your transcripts
- A list of your extracurricular activities
- A list of your leadership experience
- A letter of recommendation from a teacher or counselor

Preparing for your West Point nomination interview is essential. By following the tips in this guide, you can increase your chances of success.

Remember, the panel is looking for candidates who are intelligent, motivated, and have a strong leadership potential. So, be yourself, be honest, and be enthusiastic. And most importantly, don't forget to show the panel why you're passionate about West Point.
