The book begins with the author's sudden and unexpected loss of her husband. In the aftermath of his death, she is left reeling from grief and uncertainty. She doesn't know how she will go on without him, or how she will ever find happiness again.

But as she slowly begins to heal, the author discovers that there is still hope. She finds solace in nature, in her relationships with her friends and family, and in her own creativity. She learns that it is possible to grieve and to heal at the same time, and that even in the darkest of times, there is always light to be found.

After the River, The Sun is a beautifully written and deeply moving memoir. It is a story of loss, healing, and hope that will resonate with anyone who has ever experienced loss or heartache. It is a book that will help you to find your way through the darkness and to discover the light within yourself.
