Welcome to the year 1349, where the Black Death ravages Europe and fear reigns supreme. The city of Calais, a strategic stronghold on the English Channel, finds itself under siege by the relentless French army. Within its crumbling walls, a sinister mystery unfolds, threatening to tear the city apart from within.

Amidst the chaos and despair, a group of unlikely characters emerge:

- Sister Alys: A young nun with a keen eye for detail and a strong sense of justice.

- Thomas the Bowman: A skilled archer who has returned home to find his city under attack.
- Brother Cadfael: A wise and experienced monk who has witnessed the horrors of war firsthand.
- Mayor Jean de Vienne: The courageous leader of Calais, determined to defend his city at all costs.

As the siege tightens and resources dwindle, tensions rise within the city. Food supplies are running low, and the citizens are growing desperate. When a series of gruesome murders occur, panic and suspicion spread like wildfire.

Sister Alys, with her sharp mind and determination, takes it upon herself to investigate the killings. Assisted by Thomas the Bowman and Brother Cadfael, she uncovers a web of deceit and corruption that reaches the highest levels of the city.

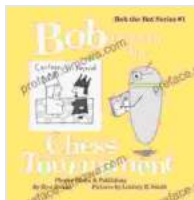

As Alys delves deeper into the mystery, she discovers that the true enemy may not be outside the city walls but within. With each victim, the stakes rise higher, and Alys must race against time to prevent further bloodshed.
