

Sunset Baby: A Gripping Drama About Mental Illness and Motherhood

Sunset Baby is a powerful and moving play that delves into the complexities of mental illness, motherhood, and the search for redemption. Written by Dominique Morisseau, the play follows the story of Nina, a young woman who struggles with postpartum depression after the birth of her daughter. As Nina's mental health deteriorates, she begins to question her own identity and her ability to care for her child.

The play is set in a single room in a psychiatric hospital, where Nina is being treated for her illness. As she interacts with the other patients and staff, Nina begins to confront her past traumas and the events that led to her breakdown. Through flashbacks and dream sequences, the audience is given a glimpse into Nina's troubled childhood and her strained relationship with her mother.
