Synopsis

From the bestselling author of Just Friends comes a poignant and unforgettable novel about love, loss, and the healing power of friendship.

Zaara Kapur is a successful cardiologist with a seemingly perfect life. But when her husband of ten years announces that he wants a divorce, her world is shattered.

With the help of her best friends, Sarah and Anya, Zaara must navigate the treacherous waters of heartbreak and rediscover who she is outside of her marriage. Along the way, she learns that even the most broken of hearts can be mended.

Excerpt

"I can't breathe," Zaara whispered.

Sarah and Anya looked at each other with concern. They had been through this with Zaara before. Her husband, David, had always been a bit of a jerk, but they had never imagined that he would actually leave her.

"You're going to be okay," Sarah said. "We're here for you."

Anya nodded. "We're not going anywhere."

Zaara took a deep breath and tried to calm herself down. She knew that her friends were right. They had always been there for her, through thick and thin. And they would be there for her now, too.

But even with their support, Zaara couldn't shake the feeling that her life was over. She had lost the love of her life, and she didn't know how she was going to go on without him.
