Where echoes of laughter and whispers still remain.

The familiar streets now faded, yet etched in my mind,

Each corner a stage for stories I left behind.”

The Present's Embrace

While the poems pay homage to the past, they also celebrate the beauty of the present moment. In "This Is Then," the poet encourages us to break free from the shackles of nostalgia and fully embrace the here and now. A symphony of colors, a moment to bless.

This is then, a tapestry we weave,

Embrace it, cherish it, let your heart believe.”
